

TriMas' Cequent Group Enforces Protection of Intellectual Property Rights

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich., Aug 05, 2010 /PRNewswire via COMTEX News Network/ -- TriMas Corporation (Nasdaq: TRS) - a diversified global manufacturer of engineered and applied products - today announced that Cequent Performance Products, Inc. reached an agreement with Pacific Rim International, LLC to protect the intellectual property rights of various Cequent Bulldog(R) brand gooseneck trailer couplers.

In response to the discovery late last year that Pacific Rim had copied Cequent's patented technology on several models of Cequent's Bulldog gooseneck trailer couplers, Cequent filed a patent infringement suit.

Cequent's Bulldog brand is a leading name in heavy duty couplers designed for utility, horse/livestock, cargo and construction trailer applications. The patented technology utilized in the Bulldog gooseneck couplers features a highly functional tapered locking plate system that has very high acceptance in these markets. Cequent's Bulldog gooseneck couplers are available in configurations to match virtually any gooseneck trailer.

In response to Cequent's claims, Pacific Rim agreed to settle the dispute with Cequent as opposed to facing continuing patent litigation in Federal District Court. The specific terms are confidential.
